MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

The development of efficient hospitals was an outstanding contribution of Islamic civilization. The hospitals served all citizens free and without any regard to their color, religion, sex, age or social status. Hospitals had separate wards for male and female patients and were staffed with nursing and other ancillary staff of the same sex. Patients with different diseases were allocated different wards. Hospitals provided patients with unlimited water supply and bathing facilities. Only qualified and licensed physicians were allowed to practice medicine. The hospitals were teaching hospitals to educate and train medical students. They had housing for students and house-staff, and contained pharmacies dispensing free drugs to patients. All hospitals had their own conference rooms and extensive and expensive libraries

HORN AFRICAN & FIMA SAVE VISION BRING EYE SIGHT BACK TO HUNDREDS IN A FEW MONTHS TIME

Horn of Africa suffers the worst insult of poverty, ignorance, illiteracy, poor healthcare and unemployment. The human development index in this region is lowest in the world. Besides other infectious and non-communicable disease burden, 1.2% of population in region is blind. More than 140,000 people are living with blindness. 80% of those are curable. Most of the blind people live in rural areas. There is no eye care service in small cities and rural areas. Those blind people living in rural areas may live with treatable blindness for more than 10 years due to the lack of eye care service in their regions.

The Horn African Save Vision team consists of the graduates from FIMA-Hargeisa University Alumni, they are all highly motivated eye surgeons ready to volunteer their services for the noble cause of fighting the menace of blindness especially in horn of Africa. Their

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear President FIMA, Director FSV, Chairman POB, Dean PMC and Ex Co Members

Assalam o Allaikum

Hope this E mail will find you in best of health and Iman.

As you know convocation of first batch of DOMS in Hargeisa (Collaborative program of FIMA and PMC) was conducted in last December and six students were graduated.

Just today I received the performance report of these graduates in the form of two presentations.

I was in tears to know about such a brilliant outcome of FIMA and PMC initiative. They are determined to bring a real significant change in the eye care facilities in that neglected area.

All my dear brothers are requested to kindly study the presentation of "Horn Africa Save Vision" and come up with suggestions.

All the members are either the students or the teachers of this program.

Looking forward to see your response.

With best regards
Wassalam

REMAINING MESSAGE OF THE PRESIDENT

containing the most up-to-date books. Universities, cities and hospitals acquired large libraries, physicians had their own extensive personal book collections, at a time when printing was unknown and book editing was done by skilled and specialized scribes putting in long hours of labor. These hospitals kept records of all their patients and their medical care, something done for the first time in medical history. The hospital was divided into two main departments, outpatient and in-patient departments. The in-patient department differed only slightly from any modern in-patient department. On admission the patients were given special apparel while their clothes, money, and valuables were stored away, and returned to them at the time of their discharge. On discharge, they also received five gold pieces each to tide them over until they could support themselves. The hospital also provided facilities for performing prayers. Medical officers regularly visited the prisons. At a time when Paris and London were mud streets and hovels, Baghdad, Cairo, and Cordova had hospitals, which incorporated innovations, which sound amazingly modern. It was chiefly in the humaneness of patient caring that the Muslim hospitals excelled. Near the wards of those afflicted with fever, fountains cooled the air; the insane were treated with gentleness; and at night music and storytelling soothed the patients.

One of the greatest civilizational contributions of Muslims to the field of health is that they were the first to establish hospitals in the world. They preceded others in that domain with more than nine centuries!

The first hospital in the Islamic civilization was established by Umayyad Caliph Al-Walid ibn Abd-al-Malik, who ruled in the period 86-96 AH (corresponding to 705-715 AD). That hospital was specialized in treating leprosy. After that, several hospitals were established in the Islamic world, with some having great fame. These hospitals were considered strongholds of science and medicine. They were one of the first colleges and universities worldwide, while the first hospital in Europe was established in Paris more than nine centuries later.

Those giant hospitals were divided into sections according to specialization. They included sections for abdominal diseases, surgery, dermatology, ophthalmology, psychological diseases, bones and fractures, and others.

Those hospitals were not only places for medical treatment, but genuine colleges of medicine. A specialized doctor - professor - used to check the cases in the morning accompanied by doctors who were in their early stages of medical study. He taught them, took notes and prescribed medicines, while they used to observe and learn. Unfortunately these great institution and their traditions perished with the decline of Muslim glory.

FIMA (Federation of Islamic Medical Associations) since its inception in Orlando in 1981 has been focusing on renaissance and revival of Islamic ethics and values in Modern Medicine, CME, improving the curriculum and training of Medical colleges in Muslim world, Year Books, medical students activities, Medical and humanitarian relief and many other areas where Muslim physicians can contribute in making this world a meaningful and healthy place to live.

IHC (Islamic Hospital Consortium) is another important FIMA project which aims at organizing the working and services in Islamic Hospitals in light of guidelines laid down by Shariah and promoting concept of service to mankind and empathy in medical practice while observing respect of a Muslim patient in terms of facilitating high quality medical services with faith as a supportive measure. The concept of Ibadah friendly hospitals has gained wide acceptance and popularity in the Muslim countries and dozens of the hospitals are following the Muslim medical code of practice in hospital management.

IHC periodically hold seminars and conferences to appraise the Muslim healthcare professionals to build capacity and develop Ibadah friendly hospitals and envision and maintain Shariah compliance in their foundation and establishment.

IHC is holding a 2 days International symposium from 18-20th October 2016 in Kuala Lumpur where luminaries from Muslim medical world will discuss these issues in detail.

The important topics under discussion will be Understanding of Maqasid al Shariah and Qawiyed el Shariah in medical practice, Rukhsah and Zarura in Medicine, Challenges in implementing Ibadah friendly hospitals.....Nursing perspective, Ibadah for patientswhat we need to know, Islamic social responsibility, Islamic medical ethic in hospital perspective and essential guidelines in establishing Ibadah friendly hospitals.

The faculty includes world renowned scholars, including Prof. Omar Hasan Kasule, Prof. Aly Mishal, Dr. Noor Hisham Abdullah, Dr Ishak Masud, Prof. Najibul Haq, Prof Hafeez ur Rehman, Prof Dr Muhammad Albar and many others.

FIMA fraternity is urged to attend the important IHC seminar and update its membership regarding latest developments in the emerging field of Islamic healthcare in a Shariah compliant environment.
